Easter Marked By Special Mission Opening on Sunday, United Church

Easter Sunday is universally looked upon as the day which gives meaning to life, when the "Followers of Jesus" should be filled with great joy. The Resurrection has affected the whole range and compass of life. "Without a faith in immortality and a realization that the ideals and purposes and longings that have their seat in human personality have somewhere an opportunity for realization, then life must lose all its meaning, and mortality and goodness and duty become a mere shadow of nothing at all."

The services at St. Paul's will herald the soul-inspiring truth of the Resurrection. Beginning Sunday morning we begin a special mission under the leadership of one of the outstanding preachers of the United Church, Rev. J. Williams Ogden, D.D. of Vancouver. He comes with the highest recommendations as a preacher of a vital message. His subjects for Easter Sunday are: 11 a.m. "An Easter message for the man who is specially down." The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered in connection with the morning service. The junior choir will render special music. 7 p.m., sermon subject, "A Friend at Court." Special singing in keeping with the thought of Easter. The Sunday school will meet as usual for a short session. You are cordially invited to these services and to the week night services at 7 p.m., each evening, including Friday, April 6th.

INTERESTING REPORT OF CHINESE WEDDING IN CANTON PROVINCE

Percy Chow, Former Coleman Boy, Married With Attendant Rites and Ceremony.

In a letter to Winnifred Dunlop, Dorothy Chow, who with her parents returned to China about a year ago, after living in Coleman since childhood, gives the following interesting account of her brother's wedding:

"When Percy was engaged we had to give Chinese cakes, money for the girl's mother to buy furniture and jewelry, a couple of pigs for the feast held at the girl's house. At our village we had to build a big thatched-roofed building. The frame was made of bamboo and the walls were straw mats. This building was for cooking the feast and for the people to go there to eat. The feast was attended by all descendants of our great grandfather."

"When the bride arrived in her carriage, borne by two men on their shoulders, and with all her furniture, fire crackers were burning. As soon as the bride enters the village portals, all the little boys try to upset the carriage to see the bride. The bride is then set down while the furniture is brought into our house. The bride has to wait inside her carriage until a pair of my brother's pants is put on top of the carriage. A woman of our house has to walk around the carriage with some burning straw, the bride is then set on the back of another woman and carried into the house. At this time the comit fire crackers burn loud and long; then the young men and boys of our village go into the room with Percy where they sing and eat sugar cane and oranges."

"The next day the bride has to go to the feast building. This is another feast; men from the other villages are also invited. The bride has to give each man a cup of tea to drink. When all through the bride goes back to the house. At supper time all the relatives are invited to eat again. It certainly costs to get a wife. My father said he estimated it amounted to $1500 or more."

McGILLIVRAY COMPANY ANNUAL MEETING

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the company was held at the head office here on Tuesday, March 7, to receive the ordinary reports of the directors and auditors, and for the transaction of general business, followed by the election of directors and other officers.

Present from a distance were Lorne A. Campbell, of Rossland, president; Robert A. Burns, St. Paul, Minn.; Henry A. Theony, St. Paul; James Nowell, St. Paul; and former president now of the directors, Geo. Kellock is vice-president and general manager; Albert F. Short, secretary-treasurer.

"DON'T DODGE IT," said Theodore Vail.

Theodore Vail, late president of the Bell Telephone Company, said: "The way to meet a difficulty is to face it. If you own a bill don't dodge it. Pay it today if it is humanly possible. Retain your self respect — make good your credit standing. If you can't pay today tell your creditor when you will pay, and keep your promise. You will win his good will and save yourself embarrassment and loss of standing."

PAY THOSE BILLS TODAY! KEEP YOUR CREDIT GOOD!

CURLERS COMPLETE SEASON—

WINNERS OF TROPHIES
Advantage was taken of the cold weather last week by the curlers who completed their season's schedule. Final results now stand: McGillivray cup, F. Creggan's rink; Merchant's cup, J. Bell's rink; Morrison cup, T. Jackson's rink; consolation, W. Cousins' rink.

Will Sign Agreement

A pit-head ballot on acceptance of renewal agreement by Coleman mine workers resulted in a 10 to 1 majority. The committee met the mine management to sign the agreement this evening.

EASTER MESSAGES BY WIRE

Increased popularity of Easter greetings by wire is being met by special wire facilities arranged by the Canadian Pacific Department of Communications, to deal with the additional seasonal traffic this year. Flowers can also be wired and figures show that there has been a steady growth in this service since 1930.

Hockey Championship Brings Comment from Rev. R. A. Robinson—Earl and Countess Grey's

Visits Recalled.
Shelburne, N. S.
March 17, 1934

The Editor,
The Coleman Journal.

Sir—I was pleased to receive your paper of March 8th containing my account of the Community Christmas trees of 1934 and 1935. The first page of that number struck me rather peculiarly. You proclaimed that Olds and Coleman were struggling for the intermediate hockey championship. I was reminded of the play, "Chanticleer," of which we read quite a lot a number of years ago. In this play, it will be remembered, there were characters representing various demons of the farmyard, the hero being the cock, "Chanticleer." Every morning Chanticleer crowed lustily and at once the sun rose. The hero was firmly convinced that the glorious day came forth at his call. If he did not crow the sun would not appear. Why did I think of this? It became immediately before coming to Coleman I had lived in Olds, being the first Anglican clergyman there, and getting the church built, as I did in Coleman. I was filled to overflowing with a sense of the significance of my own foundation, laying in these places. I should probably say, "There is the result of my efforts—champion young men in these two towns. But I do not feel that I can crow in that way. But, what shall I do? Shall my sympathies in the contest be for Olds or Coleman? It must be all over now, else I should simply say, 'May the best men win.'"

The old-timers will no doubt recall the visit to Coleman of Earl Grey, as Governor-General. I think that was in 1905. Since then I have often wished that the miners and all of us knew more about the personality of that very splendid man. In 1918 appeared a brief sketch, a little book edited by Harold Begbie, containing the Earl's last message to the British people. A copy lies before me now. It is well worth reading. Mr. Begbie says, "It is important to keep in mind that in spite of his gaily, his buoyancy, his quite frank love of this interesting and delightful world, the ideas of Albert Grey were very soberly sound, and were ever inspired by one of two serious things, either by his spiritual and almost religious enthusiasm for the British Empire, whose standard," as he once said, "is righteousness and whose path is duty, or by his generous humanity which could not be content with society as he found it. The man who came to Coleman as the representative of the king was a man more deeply interested in those who lived in cottages than those living in palaces; in those toiling with their hands than in white collar men, yet how many of us knew it at that time!"

When the Earl came, there was no mayor, no council in Coleman. H. N. Galer was resident managing director of the International Coal and Coke and also "Overseer" of the town. The main level of the mine had been turned up for a distance of about a mile in the mountain. After the more ordinary proceeding of presenting an address and receiving a reply, the vice-regal party were given what was to them an unique experience. A new coal truck was fired with seats and they were run for a distance of about a mile in the mountain. At the end of the line they got out of the truck and each picked a bit of coal, not excepting the countess.

There was an unfortunate sequel to this visit. The Earl was so interested in thus entering a mine that he returned the following year with some friends whom he wished to enjoy the same experience. Mr. Galer was away and it appeared that someone had blundered. The first notification of the proposed visit that any of us had was when word went around that the Governor-General's train would arrive in a couple of hours. When it stopped at the station there was a crowd standing back some ten yards from the platform, but not a soul to meet the distinguished party! The platform was as bare as the cupboard of our dear old Mother Hubbard. I was in the crowd, naturally, but I felt that someone must do something to save the terribly embarrassing situation. Few people probably realize how often the clergy fill a gap I felt it incumbent on me to act, as no one else moved forward, so I stepped to the platform. Off the train came the dignified Aide-de-camp prepared to meet mayors, councillors, sheriffs or what not and behold—a parson in knickerbockers! As I was explaining the situation the Governor-General stepped off the train, realizing that something was amiss. When I told him our town was of initiating five new members. Father was away and I proposed visit, he was greatly disappointed. "I brought some friends with me," said he, "and wanted to take them into the mine." I said I would see the highest official at home and was sure it could be arranged. "Oh, no," he replied. "It is too late now." A few minutes later the train pulled out. At the forward window of the private car I was working at a desk with his coat off. Albert, 4th Earl Grey.

Begbie mentions some typical incident of bereavement.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

A new bridge is being planned for construction by the International Co. to take the place of the old bridge, situated near the railroad crossing. East Coleman, which is showing signs of weakness under the constant traffic of the yard engine and the heavily loaded box cars.

Minerva Chapter O.E.S. held an enjoyable social evening on Thursday, March 22. Court whist was played, the prize-winners being Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. A. Dewar (playing as gent) and Harry Harris. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Robert Morris and J. Ford Jr. Following the serving of lunch, the rest of the evening was enjoyed in dancing.

Three Alberta football teams affiliated with the C.N.P.F.A. are conducting extensive drives in their efforts to raise funds for the coming season. Hillcrest are selling tickets on a radio, Coleman have tickets on a watch and Bellevue are sponsoring whist drives and dances. Blairmore, the fourth Alberta team, has yet to be heard from.

A shower was held at the home of Mrs. W. G. Hopkins in honor of Mrs. Jesse Hurst (nee Winnifred Phillips). Cards were played, the prizes going to: 1st Mrs. H. Hubert, 2nd Miss J. Fauville, 3rd, Mrs. J. Jenkins. After cards lunch was served. After lunch little Mary Hopkins brought in a carriage full of lovely gifts. Mrs. Hurst thanked her friends for their kindness and good wishes.

The meeting announced to be held in the Greenhill hotel last Friday to discuss formation of a hospital district, was not largely attended, Hillcrest or Coleman not being represented. It is reported the time of the meeting was delayed to await the arrival of Messrs Murphy and Sloan, executive members of the Workers United League. W. Knight, J. Dugdale, C. J. Tompkins and E. Donkin were appointed as a committee.

An Exhibition Of Childhood

London is to witness a most unique exhibition when, on April 19, will open a display of relics of "Children throughout the Ages," acclaimed as the most comprehensive portrayal of child life down the centuries ever presented to the public. The event derives significance as much from the historic value of the various exhibits, as from the purpose to which the proceeds are to be devoted. The beneficiary will be one of London's most deserving charities.

The relics to be displayed link child life with the dim remote ages of the past, the oldest exhibit being a Chinese doll said to date from 600 B.C. From that far distance down the years, the varying fancies of children, the toys which brought them pleasure, the garments they wore, the furniture which decked their nurseries and playrooms, all will be traceable in the array of exhibits from the pre-Christian era down to the end of the reign of Queen Victoria.

Queen Elizabeth's christening robe, her cap and mittens, a portrait of her as a baby (by Holbein), will be on show. A shirt worn by Charles I. as a child of two, his boyhood's broadsword, cut will find prominent place in the display beside Oliver Cromwell's christening robe. Here then that historic enemy which ended so tragically for the monarch is made to symbolize the transitory nature of human passions and, transformed, serves the charitable purposes of to-day. Napoleon, too, will be represented, not in a manifestation of childish desire but rather in evidence of that other love which great and lowly have in common, and which is, of course, as old as childhood is. The present given by the Emperor Napoleon to his infant son, the King of Rome, has been obtained as an exhibit.

Femurminators and cradles and such adjuncts of childhood that flourished in the seventeenth century, have been collected to augment the display. Children's furniture from the sixteenth to the nineteenth centuries will be shown, as well as a display of British and foreign children's clothes, hats, shoes and gloves of the same period, early games, cards and jigsaw puzzles, playbooks and lesson books. A series of rooms is being arranged to depict child scenes of bygone days with inevitable wax figures in the Madame Tussaud tradition. There will be portrayed in similar fashion a Kate Greenaway scene, a Victorian Sunday, the ancient nannies and the modern nurse.

The British royal family, as usual where charity is the object, is according wholehearted support to the exhibition. Queen Mary is contributing playthings of her own childhood, and toys which enthralled the young Prince of Wales, his brothers and sisters. Two gold rattles given by Queen Victoria to the Prince of Wales also have been offered, and considerable interest will attach to an exhibit of the immature efforts of the Prince and his brother, the Duke of York, and his sister, the Princess Alice.

Perhaps one of the most interesting of the relics to be exhibited, however, has no connection whatever with the childhood of the great or the near-great. It is a pater feeding bottle, believed to date back to about 1750. It was discovered in possession of a farmer who was using it to feed his lambs. Probably no more fitting place could be found for this memento of a bygone period than a long-forgotten childhood than alongside the relics of royal youth and palace playrooms. It is a striking reminder of that strange democracy of the very young, that constant symbol of the "great levellers"—childhood and death—and it is to be hoped that as such, in these transitional days, it will be interpreted by those privileged to patronize the exhibition.

There is a timely moral lesson, too, in the story recently told by one of the better known financial journals. It happened that a shabbily dressed, ostensibly poor, elderly woman entered the classic portals of a large up-town bank in New York, and told the uniformed guard she desired to open an account. She was shown to the new account department where three officers of the bank were more intent upon the approaching lunch hour than upon new business, particularly business which came in such inauspicious garb. As it happened, lunch won, and the woman was left to the manager.

After stating her mission, the old lady asked to see a statement of the bank's financial position, much to the surprise of the manager who was accustomed to having the institution's financial status taken for granted, particularly by small depositors. However, he presented the requested statement, answered courteously some startlingly intelligent and pertinent questions, which satisfactorily received, brought the intimation the lady wished to open an account. She gave her name and other necessary information, and casually, for he expected a small initial sum, he asked: "How much do you wish to deposit?"

"Thirty-one thousand dollars," replied the old lady, equally casually, as she proceeded to count out the money in bills of various denominations.

Strange Accidents At Sea

Ships' Officers Give Accounts Of Two Unusual Collisions

Recalling strange accidents at sea, officers of the steamer Beechpark, at Saint John, gave first-hand accounts of two unusual collisions.

Chief Engineer David Thomson was with the Volutina when that ship carried troops across the English Channel in war days. Traveling without lights, troop-carriers proceeded at full speed over courses ordered clear by the admiralty. A stocky trawler returning from the banks had not heard the warning and unwittingly crossed the troopship's track.

"It was the first time an iron ship was cut in two," said Thomson. "We struck the big trawler broadsides, plowed right through the hull and out the other side. From the port I got a fleeting glance of the stern half sinking."

Only five of the crew of 39 were rescued, and one died soon after. "The confused survivors wouldn't believe it. They couldn't understand why we had not foundered also."

Capt. Will Masson told how the steamer Montpark, a famous Q-boat during the war, met a strange end while under his command in 1919. A crash occurred while the Montpark was feeling its way through poor visibility one night a few days out from the Tyne mouth. Capt. Masson saw the bow of another ship protruding into his own, heard terse orders in a foreign language, and watched the unknown vessel back away into the mist.

The Montpark sinking, its crew jumped into the sea. Capt. Masson and a few seamen were rescued from a life raft the following evening, but other members of the crew were never found and the ship which left them helpless was never identified.

Progress For Persia

Mechanization Of Old Handicraft Industries Looks Like Mistake

And now the shah of Persia has evolved a five-year plan! Progress is to make its debut through the mechanization of the ancient handicraft industries that have created so many delights for collectors. Great carpet and rug factories will rear their looms where patient hands have labored after the traditions and the patterns of the centuries.

Great will be the cost, but it has made oriental-rug collecting a delight to those with incomes permitting it. No longer will variations in color tell of the exhaustion of some native dye mixture, or irregularities in pattern betray the advent of a new native weaver. The innovations that began with aniline dyes and chemical washes will reach their climax in a uniformity that matches the best American "orientals."

Indeed, progress in Persia may mean no progress at all. Who will want a genuine oriental rug if it differs not a whit from the mechanized product of the continent?

What Motorists Pay In Taxes

Automobiles Contribute More Than 27 Per Cent. To Revenue

More than 27 per cent. of the total revenues collected by the governments of the different provinces of Canada is contributed by owners of automobiles in the form of taxes on gasoline and license fees. This information is disclosed in a report just issued by the Canadian government bureau of statistics.

The report states that the total amount paid by automobile owners to the provincial treasuries in the fiscal year 1932-33 was $45,499,458, of which gasoline taxes accounted for $24,948,280 and $20,551,173 in license fees.

In the province of Ontario 35.9 per cent. of the total government revenue is paid by motorists; in Quebec, 32 per cent.; in Nova Scotia, 27.2 per cent.; in New Brunswick, 27.3 per cent.; in Alberta, 24.1 per cent.; in Prince Edward Island, 22.1 per cent.; in Saskatchewan, 18.4 per cent.; in British Columbia, 17 per cent. and in Manitoba, 15.45 per cent.

High Broadcasting Station

To spread Hungarian culture throughout the world and make it possible for nationals residing in other countries to keep in easy contact with the fatherland, Hungary will erect the highest radio broadcasting station in the world. It will be on an island south of Budapest. A trellis work steel tower will rise 932 feet, and a telescopic shaft on top will make the total height 1,022 feet.

Telephones in Iceland number 4,773, while those in Nigeria total 2,000 and those in Belgian Congo, 1,420.

Restricting Rubber Supply

Britain And Holland May Find Plans Upset

W. L. Clark, writing in the Border Cities Star says: "With Great Britain and Holland controlling 95 per cent. of the world production of rubber and the United States consuming 50 per cent. of the output, conversations are being held between the British and Dutch with a view to restricting the supply."

In 1928 the British tried the Stevenson restriction plan which curbed exports of rubber as well as actual production. The world price of crude rubber went up from 16 cents to $1.50 per pound. Then the Dutch producers stepped up and ruined the British scheme. The price sagged. It is now between 9 and 10 cents per pound.

Just now the Dutch are dickering with the native producers in the Dutch East Indies. Although the natives do not contribute much to the total supply, it is sufficient to knock the props from under any restriction scheme of the British and Dutch. In the meantime the United States is asking the right to take part in the discussion as the chief rubber consumer.

The way the rubber restriction plan can be upset so simply prompts the thought that Soviet Russia could easily make any wheat agreement between the other nations look pretty sick."

Motor License Revenues

Alberta Government Does Not Favor Extending License Year To April 1st

Revenue from Alberta motor licenses amounted to $800,000 for January and February of this year. Premier Brownlee stated in the legislature in showing that this is an important source of provincial receipts at the year's opening.

At the time, the premier was dealing with the government's firm opposition to acceding to the largely signed petition from the Alberta Motor Association asking that the license year be extended from January 1 to April 1.

Formation of a moving picture censor board for the prairie provinces may be considered shortly, according to information given the legislature by Mr. Brownlee. Estimates for the censor board in this province were under discussion. The amount passed was $8,900, an increase of $20 over last year.

Prince George And African Chief Shake Hands

Prince George and Chief Tshelodi of the Banamangwa tribes, whose banishment a year ago aroused international attention, were the central figures in a cordial gathering at the king's youngest son opened his tour of Bechuanaland and Rhodesia.

The native chieftain, sent from his territories for dogging a white man and subsequently reinstated by King George, warmly assured the prince of the tribe's loyalty to the throne, and presented him with a magnificent set of skins.

The prince shook hands and in turn presented the chief with a walking stick. Subsequently Prince George shook hands with Tshelodi's mother, Queen Simane, whose dramatic appeal to the king on her son's suspension brought about his reinstatement.

New Television Machine

Will Be Ready For Demonstration At Chicago Show

The world's largest television machine, being built at the Horton Steel Works, Fort Erie, N.Y., will be ready for demonstrations at the re-opening of the Century of Progress Exhibition at Chicago on May 1. The builder of the machine, U. A. Sanabria, of Chicago, said the machine would have a 30-foot screen and its transmitter would weigh more than 5,000 pounds. It would have a definition sufficiently large to handle an entire scene at one time.

British Flight Squadron

Suggestion Is Made That A Visit To Canada Should Be Undertaken

A suggestion was made in the British House of Commons that the United Kingdom send to Canada detachments or flights of airplanes to "show the flag" in the Dominion. The planes would be sent aboard a naval aircraft carrier.

Discussion of the proposal arose during the debate on the air estimates when Oliver E. Simmonds, Duddleston Conservative and aircraft manufacturer, told the house Canada had never seen a squadron of British planes, although every year squadrons of machines from the United States made exhibition flights to Canadian air pageants.

Mr. Simmonds said he was in Ottawa early this year and heard how expressed that the Royal Air Force would "show the flag" in Canada. He asked that the air ministry consider the matter.

Sir Philip Sassoon, minister for air, described the suggestion as "very interesting."

Passenger Train Pooling

Expected To Effect Big Savings Under Arrangement

The passenger train pooling arrangement for in the Montreal-Toronto, Ottawa-Toronto and Montreal-Quebec services, as extended and effective from March 11, will produce a total saving of approximately 1,000,000 train miles per annum, divided about evenly between the C.N.R. and C.P.R. and on the basis of a conservative estimate will represent a saving to each company of approximately $500,000 per annum. This information was given in the House of Commons by Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, based on a telegram from Chairman C. P. Fullerton, of the C.N.R. board of trustees.

Dickens Was Good Reporter

Began Career In Press Gallery Of British Parliament

A new work by Dickens which has been running serially in many newspapers is appropriate for at least two reasons. His genius first broke on the world in instalments. Was there ever a time in the history of literature when a world of readers waited so impatiently as people did for the immortal monthly "parts" that began with "Pickwick"?

The second reason is even more pertinent for newspaper men. Dickens began his career as a reporter. He worked in the press gallery of parliament from his nineteenth to his twenty-third year, until he set to work on "Pickwick." He was one of the best parliamentary reporters of his day, with an extraordinary reputation for accuracy. He told the New York editors in one of his farewell speeches, "To the wholesome training of severe newspaper work, when I was a very young man, I constantly refer my first successes."

Private Arms Trade Must End To Remove Cause Hindering Peace

Ottawa.—War can only be removed by "killing the operations of the interests that profit from war, and out of conditions that lead to war," said Professor T. W. L. MacDermot, speaking under the auspices of the League of Nations Society and the Association of Canadian Clubs.

"These include the calculated barbarism of the private arms trade, and the universal unrest and suppressed passion caused by social discontent," he added. "To put the profit out of business, and to cure the disease of poverty, are two of the ways Canada can work for peace in the world."

The key to Canada's continued progress was maintenance of peace, he asserted. Canada's wheat exports had been cut to a quarter "mainly by preparation for war in Europe." The internal economic life of the Dominion "is nearly paralyzed because we have to use 50 per cent. in every dollar of our taxation to pay for the last war."

Professor MacDermot said that Canada should use any machinery available which made for peace.

St. Lawrence Project

President Roosevelt Assured That Every Effort Is Being Made To Assist Plan

Washington.—Frank P. Walsh, New York State power authority chairman, assured President Roosevelt that every effort would be made to go ahead with the power programme on the St. Lawrence project and he promised to continue co-operation for eventual development of the St. Lawrence seaway.

In a memorandum to the president, Walsh said: "It should be possible to reach a complete agreement among the several government agencies involved well within the current year. 'An annual saving in the north-east of more than $200,000,000 in lower electric rates, resulting from completion of the St. Lawrence project, is indicated by detailed figures which will shortly be presented to the New York legislature.'"

Train Wreck In Russia

Thirty-three Persons Are Reported Killed And Fifty-Six Injured

Moscow.—Thirty-three persons were killed and 56 injured in the wreck of two trains near Sverdlovsk. The wreck occurred nine days ago, but word of it did not become public here until recently.

Despatches said a local passenger train, travelling at high speed, ran through a closed semaphore at Tavatul, and collided with a freight train.

The responsible employees are already on trial.

This is the fourth such catastrophe reported within a month.

Governor-General Opens Fair

Winnipeg.—His Excellency Lord Bensonburgh, Governor-General of Canada, officially opened the annual winter livestock fair at Brandon. His Excellency was accompanied by Brandon by His Honor, Hon. J. D. McGregor, lieutenant-governor of Manitoba.

Will Be Unnecessary For Government To Guarantee Further Loans

Ottawa.—The conditions this year will be such, the government expects, that it will not be necessary for the Dominion to guarantee any loan of a private company as was the case with the Canadian Pacific railway last year. Hon. Wesley Gordon, minister of labor made this clear in the House of Commons.

Accordingly the part of the clause in the relief act of 1933 which gave the government authority to make such guarantees will be dropped in the relief act of 1934.

The relief act passed each year gives authority to the Dominion to deal with the provinces in relieving unemployment and should not be confused with the forthcoming federal works program, which will be entirely a Dominion undertaking and will be brought into the house as separate legislation.

Bombing In Berlin

Explosion Wrecks Taxi Of Jewish Owner Of Motion Picture Theatre

Berlin.—A tin can filled with high explosives was hurled on the famous Unter Den Linden and wrecked a taxi containing David Oliver, Jewish owner of a motion picture theatre.

First reports which raced through Berlin that the bombing was an attempt to assassinate Hermann Goering, premier of Prussia and close associate of Chancellor Hitler, were denied. Evidence indicated it was a plot against the life of Oliver.

The automobile was wrecked, near the intersection of the avenue with the Wilhelmstrasse, and Oliver's chauffeur was seriously injured.

Members of the family of the theatre owner, a native of Austria but for 35 years a resident of Berlin, refused to discuss the affair. He was "at home," it was said.

It was at his theatre recently that anti-Jewish demonstrations resulted in the banning of the film, "Catherine The Great," featuring Elizabeth Bergner, a Jewess.

Rumors that Goering had been sent to drive past the corner shortly before the explosion lent color to the story that he was the intended victim, but these met a vigorous denial from police.

The premier, they said, was attending the ceremonies opening a ship lock at Niederfinow at the time. Police offered $500 marks (about $195) reward for information to clear up the mysterious explosion.

Northern Route For Cattle

Reach Britain In Better Condition, Says Calgary Shipper

Ottawa.—Cattle shipped to the United Kingdom market over the Hudson Bay route will arrive in better shape than if taken over the long rail route to Montreal or Saint John, the Stevens committee of the House of Commons was told by Jack Byers of Calgary, who shipped the first cattle on the far northern route.

From his experience last year, the western rancher said the Arctic route was sound and feasible but was handicapped by the short season. Insurance on cattle out of Churchill was four times as high as from eastern ports but the saving on rail hauls balanced this extra charge, making the total cost about the same.

Working On Wheat Price

Experts Meet In London To Prepare For Conference

London.—Final details for new wheat recovery proposals, including a minimum price scheme, were being worked out in preparation for the international conference at Rome, April 5.

A private meeting of experts of eight nations opened here at Bush House.

Alternative plans are being drawn up. It was learned, for some of the schemes under consideration.

The Dominion government had paid out for direct relief up to March 10 about $13,000,000, Mr. Gordon stated.

With accounts yet to come in he estimated the total payment for the fiscal year covered by the relief act of 1933 would be somewhat below the limit included in that act of $20,000,000.

Members pressed the minister to substantiate or deny published reports that the federal works scheme would run to $51,000,000. The minister, however, was non-committal as to the amount the government proposed to spend.

The resolution was carried and the bill based on it given first reading. A conference will be held with the provinces as to the spending of the money under the relief act after it has been passed, the minister explained.

For Livestock Commission

Proposal Is Made Before The Mass Buying Investigation

Ottawa.—Establishment of a permanent commission of three members to be known as the "Canadian livestock production and marketing commission" was proposed before the Stevens mass buying, and price spreads committee of the house of commons. The commission would be for the purpose of improving and stabilizing the livestock industry.

Setting up of this body was advocated by I. Ingalsdon, manager of the Canadian Livestock Co-operative (Western), Limited, and secretary-treasurer of the Manitoba Co-operative Livestock Producers, Limited.

Convening by the government within the next two months of a "Canadian livestock conference" was another proposal thrown out by Mr. Ingalsdon. This conference would meet every year. It would consist of one representative of the livestock producers' organization or organizations by each province, and two representatives of each of the following:

The Industrial and Development Council of Canada Meat Packers, the Railway Companies' Joint Council, the Retail Merchants' Association and the Consumers' Association of Canada. The conference would confer with and make recommendations to the suggested permanent commission on matters pertaining to the livestock industry.

The services of one or more experts to act in an advisory capacity to the proposed permanent commission and to the Canadian livestock conference should be procured, the western livestock authority suggested.

Western Women Honored

Receive Honorary Membership In Canadian Red Cross Society

Toronto.—Seven Western Canadian women were awarded honorary memberships at the annual meeting of the central council of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

A. H. Campbell of Toronto, official of the society for 20 years, was made an honorary councillor.

The Western women awarded honorary memberships are: Mrs. D. P. McCall, of Regina; Mrs. W. J. Myatt, Saskatoon; Miss Mary Pinkman and Mrs. E. G. Mason of Calgary; Mrs. R. L. Johnston of Kamloops, B.C.; Mrs. M. L. Ellis of Vancouver, and Mrs. Harold Fleming of Victoria.

Favors National Bank

Resolution Will Be Considered By B.C. Legislature

Victoria.—The British Columbia legislature will consider a resolution which would, if passed, place it on record as favoring a national banking system for the purpose of making national, provincial and municipal credit available for governmental expenditure.

The public accounts committee adopted a resolution to this effect. The matter was brought up by G. G. McKee, M.P. (Lib., Vancouver-Burrard). Private financing would not be affected.

Favors Titles If Earned

Ottawa.—"I will always be a plebian myself, but I am in favor of titles for Canadians, if they are restricted to those who really earn them," E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, observed in an interview here. Mr. Beatty made it plain, however, he is opposed to hereditary titles here.

REFUGEE FROM VIENNA

Self-exiled from Austria, Max Winter, former vice-mayor of Vienna, one of the leaders of the Austrian Socialist Party, is pictured as he arrived at New York. Many Socialist leaders fled the country after the party was outlawed. Winter is the first to arrive on this continent.

Return To China

Aged Chinese, Hit By Depression, Return To Canton

Canton, China.—Thousands of aged Chinese arriving at Canton from North America and other foreign ports are being given free transportation to their native villages "so that they may die at their old homes," according to a statement from the Overseas Chinese Relief Bureau.

The latest official figures gave more than 13,000,000 Chinese living abroad, but within the last year thousands of them have returned to Canton because the world-wide depression robbed them of their jobs or cost them the loss of a lifetime of savings. Most of the returned emigrants have been away from 40 to 50 years and are penniless.

Budget Surplus

Britain Expects Further Increase At End Of Fiscal Year

London.—Another increase in the current surplus was recorded, with the end of the fiscal year only 11 days away, bolstering the expectation of a budget surplus of around $100,000,000.

Latest figures, those for last week, showed revenue exceeded expenditures $34,000,000, bringing the current surplus to $110,000,000, after including the United States War Debt fund and sinking fund payments, which were not provided for in the budget a year ago.

The current surplus of $110,000,000 compares with a current deficit of $20,000,000 at this date a year ago.

Racial Problem In Washington

Negroes Are Barred From Home Restaurant By Manager

Washington.—The negro racial problem in the United States, always forming a dark and thundersome background to immediate economic troubles, has pushed forward again right in the United States capital. A big row is stewing up over refusal of P. Johnson, a former North Carolina state senator, who is now manager of the home restaurant, to permit serving of negroes who have attempted to patronize the place where representatives and their friends eat.

Plan Is Prepared For Control Of World Wheat Movements

Conflagration In Japan

130,000 Persons Reported To Have Been Made Homeless

Tokyo.—At least 1,000 persons were known to have been killed in a fire which devoured three-fourths of the city of Hakodate, largest community in Japan north of Tokyo. Twenty-five thousand buildings were destroyed and 150,000 persons were made homeless, according to figures in a message received by the minister of communications from the Hakodate wireless station on the outskirts of the ruined city.

The fire raged an equinoctial gale which whipped it into a night-long fury. The city was still burning after the sunrise hour, although the gale was reported abating.

Chimneys toppled by violent winds set fire to roofs, causing the general conflagration, reports said. Nearby suburbs also caught fire.

The Japanese army, navy and other government agencies were hastening to the scene to conduct relief work.

Electric plants were destroyed soon after the fire broke out and the city was plunged into darkness except for the lurid light of the flames.

One despatch said the city was a "living hell" and declared that "through the darkness the refugees were fleeing from death and were abandoning even the small bundles of possessions they carried from their homes."

Recovery In Britain

Condition, Better Than In Any Other Civilized Country

Newcastle, Eng.—Cancellor Neville Chamberlain claimed in a speech here that the tide of recovery had set in more definitely in the United Kingdom than in any other great civilized country.

The chancellor pointed to figures showing unemployment is still falling and said for the first time in 10 years there has been an increase in the amount of labor employed on land. He said the greater part of returning prosperity was due to growth of home trade and that the situation in industries depending on foreign markets was more difficult.

Following failure of last year's world economic conference, he said, it had become necessary to try new methods. He suggested two methods, direct negotiations of which full use was being made, and development of intra-imperial trade.

Code To Govern Industry

Kitchener, Ont.—A code to govern the furniture industry has been drawn up by more than 200 striking plant workers here, and will be forwarded to the mass buying probe instituted by Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce at Ottawa. The strike leaders claimed they had as much right as employers or government officials to prescribe for unfair labor.

Committee Does Not Divulge Information As To Wheat Holdings

Ottawa.—Refusing by a vote of 33-9 to permit John I. McFarland to divulge information regarding either the extent of the government's wheat holdings or the amount in terms of cash which the treasury has at stake, the common banking committee practically concluded its investigation into the wheat stabilization operations of the past three years.

The committee took this stand despite a clear-cut statement from Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance, that the government would place no obstacle in the way of a complete exposure of every detail. On the two critical questions placed before the committee for consideration whether or not Mr. McFarland should declare the extent of his operations in bushels and in money, the vote revealed nine Liberals in favor, all of them, save T. E. Donnelly, of Willow Bay, Saskatchewan, and Hon. Ian MacKenzie, of Vancouver, from east of the Ottawa river.

But while these facts, whose suppression was considered by the committee to be vital to the success of protective measures taken in behalf of western farmers, remained unanswered, the committee did obtain from Mr. McFarland a clear statement of the character of the operations he has carried out since assuming the general management of the central selling agency of the wheat pools on November 30, 1930.

The coupling of these projects in an effort to raise and stabilize wheat prices would cause an even more complete transformation of conditions in world grain markets than was visualized when delegates first began to explore gingerly the controversial price proposal last November.

An end to all dumping of wheat on all markets is foreseen if a quantitative control is effected.

Some quarters regard the scheme as even more important than the limitation of prices.

It would mean, in effect, the establishment of a constantly-functioning red-and-green-light traffic system on trade routes, with all governments responsible for proper control.

A much closer adjustment of wheat movements to needs would be made than was possible under the annual export quota system formulated last year by the world wheat advisory commission and delegates from 21 governments.

The quota system is the only international restriction on grain movements now in effect and binds only the "big four" exporters—Canada, United States, Argentina and the Danubian nations for the current cereal year and the next one.

The commission has worked for months on the scheme for limitation of exports and reduction of wheat acreage.

Representatives of 12 countries attended session preliminary to the Rome meeting and considered several plans to fix minimum wheat prices.

Ovation To Prince

Heir To Throne Sees Soccer Game At Wembley

London.—The Prince of Wales flew from Sondheim to see a "cup final" of a new kind at Wembley stadium, where the classic soccer cup match will be played April 28.

It was the final of the London Occupational Soccer League tourney, the teams in which were drawn from the workless men of various metropolitan districts.

Five thousand spectators, mostly unemployed like the players, gave an ovation to the prince, who shook hands with the players on both Greenwich and Walthamstow teams and chatted with several of them.

Kiwans Convention

Lethbridge.—D. H. Elton, K.C., governor of the Western Canada district, Kiwanis International, announced that the annual district convention will be held August 5-7. The convention will be held here.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The first letter opened on Monday contained copy of real interest instead of another request for free publicity. It gladdens the editor's heart to receive letters containing human interest stories, for readers enjoy them too.

Rev. R. A. Robinson's story of the visit to Coleman of the late Earl Grey and his gracious wife, gives a side-light on Canada's governor-general of those days, for he says: "The man who came to Coleman as the representative of the king was more deeply interested in those who lived in cottages than those living in palaces."

Mr. Robinson takes pride in the achievements of the hockey teams of Olds and Coleman, for he was a priest in both places, consequently he was on the horns of a dilemma as to which team to boost for. Being diplomatic he says: "May the best men win." Since he despatched his letter the result has proved decisively that Coleman was the best team. Old-timers will doubtless enjoy reading of incidents of over 30 years ago when Coleman was experiencing its embryonic struggles for a place on the map.

Preparations are going on quietly but effectively for the annual musical festival of Crown Nest Past towns. The dates are Oct. 25-26-27. Intending competitors will have ample time in which to prepare. This festival is a very important event in the year's round of work and play. It has cultural value and provides opportunity for open competition of boys and girls and adults of all classes. Requests are to be made to town councils and school boards for grants to aid the festival. Considering the educational value of the festival to the general public as well as competitors, such requests should receive a favorable response.

Mr. Lorne A. Campbell president of McGillivray Creek Coal & Coke Co.

Ltd., with directors of the company, was here this week. Conditions are improving, and power consumption in the mining districts in West Kootenay was greater in 1933 than in 1932, while output in the smelters increased. International Coal & Coke Co., the pioneer company here showed an increase of 69,363 tons in 1933 as against 1932, in large measures to the coke orders received from Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. at Trail. A market for fertilizer in great quantities for the prairie promises an outlet for by-products of the great smelter, and indications point the way to increased business. "We are over the hump," states Mr. Campbell.

Turnover of brains as well as turnover in stock keeps business men busy. Brains little used become rusty, sluggish. They produce nothing new. Were it not for dissatisfied people, there would not be much progress. Contented cows may produce good milk, but contentment in humans tends to produce idleness. The path of progress is encumbered with wrecks of hopes and ambitions, but those who suffer not defeat to hold them back press on towards the goal of their desire. Nowhere is this better exemplified than in the field of aviation. Scores have given their lives in daring attempts, trying something never tried before, yet 'tills today is comparatively as safe as land travel—maybe safer.

Working agreements between mine workers and the companies expire on March 31. Negotiations have calmly proceeded during two weeks for renewal, presumably on the same terms, heretofore existing, except for minor changes. Good news to workers and business men is the reversion of pay-days to alternate Saturdays. It does not mean more money will circulate, but it more smoothly systemizes general trading business. April 21 and every second Saturday thereafter ushers in the change. Indications of increasing work smooth over many rough spots.

Generous response was made to the subscription lists to honor Coleman Canadians. In two days almost $400 was subscribed in amounts from $5 to $25. The pleasing feature is not the amount, but the general willingness to show in tangible form recognition of the team's achievement.

Announcing the NEW 1934 CHEVROLET TRUCKS

IN 1933, Chevrolet sold more trucks than any other manufacturer. We predict even greater success for these new, 1934 Chevrolet Trucks, on display today in our showrooms! And here's why: Chevrolet offers you five new, improved truck chassis... with bigger, smarter, sturdier Chevrolet-built bodies. These new trucks are powered by an advanced new design of Chevrolet's famous truck engine... giving more torque, more power, more speed, with even greater economy. Frames and axles—transmissions, clutches and brakes—are truck-built and greatly improved. And the Chevrolet cabs are roomier and more convenient. See these new, 1934 Chevrolet Trucks—learn the typically low Chevrolet prices—today! You will agree that here is something new in the truck field... a bigger, sturdier low-priced truck—handsome, fast—and a record-breaker for economy!

When Earl Grey Visited

dents in the Earl's life. For instance, when walking one day with a friend, he had an unlighted cigar. Coming to a man in working clothes standing by the side of the road smoking his pipe, the earl stepped up to him and said, "Excuse me, old man, but would you oblige me with a light?" So he stuck the cigar into the pipe took a good draw and passed on with a word of thanks. The one I like is told of him riding with others in the woods in Quebec. Coming to a small cottage, they thought they would see if they could get a drink of milk. An old Scotch woman was there. When told that this was the Governor-General, she stepped up to him, as he sat on his horse, laid her hand on him and said, "I could easier talk with the Lord Jesus than with you." "Of course you could," was his quiet reply. "You talk to him every day."

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

It is possible that an open season for prairie chicken shooting may be declared all over Alberta this year.

Third reading was given in the House of Commons to a bill approving or arrangement for 99 years for joint use of railway tracks and station facilities at Quebec city by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways.

The little cottage in Toronto where Mary Pickford, noted film star, was born, is to be used as a tea room. City council has granted the application of A. Trudelle to operate a tea room there.

"United control" of all United States transportation, bringing motor and waterway traffic under the Interstate Commerce commission, was recommended in the report of the transportation conference of 1934.

Over 43,000 more hogs were graded in Canada during the first 10 weeks of this year than in the corresponding period of last year, namely, 657,811 in 1934; 614,087 in 1933.

J. H. Parkin of the National Research Council, Ottawa, states that a new type of aeroplane designed especially for service in mining fields has been tested at the council's laboratories and was now under construction.

Reduction of freight rates on coarse grain shipped east and west from the prairie provinces to a level approximating the export rate will be urged upon the Dominion government, if a resolution proposed by Premier Brodie is passed by the Alberta legislature.

Sea serpents are not known to exist. Prof. J. R. Dymond, assistant director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology, stated in a lecture at Toronto. "Those that have been reported and have been scientifically investigated," he said, "have been proved to be cases of mistaken identity."

An unnamed Chicagoan is scheduled to pay an income tax this year of $1,593,839.36, indicating he made from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 in 1933.

Plans for the release and return to their homes at Brilliant, B.C., of 500 Doukhobor prisoners now in Poria Island penal colony, have been completed by the British Columbia and Dominion governments.

"If you wash your face I'll give you a piece of candy," said grandmother. "And if you wash behind the ears I'll give you two pieces." "Grandma," replied little Johnny, "maybe I'd better have a bath."

Many Items of Interest To The Western Farmer

An ounce of tomato seed will produce 1,500 plants, cabbage seed 1,800 plants, and celery seed 3,000 plants. According to cold storage tests, the rate of production of eggs is apparently not related to the keeping quality of the eggs.

Storage holdings of dressed poultry in Canada on January 1 of this year amounted to 11,648,762 pounds, some 40 per cent. greater than at the same date on the previous year. Exports of Canadian poultry and eggs have increased appreciably in the last few years, while imports of both shell and processed eggs have decreased materially.

Total milk production in Canada last year was approximately the same as for the preceding year which was estimated at 15,917,868,000 pounds.

Nearly 60 per cent. of all Canadian exports which in their original state were produced on Canadian farms went to the United Kingdom during the fiscal year ending March last year.

Farmers in French Morocco in the vicinity of Fez are authorized until the end of the close season of 1934 to destroy wild boars on their lands at any time and by any means except fire, but they must not sell or give away the carcasses.

Dairy production in most foreign countries has shown an increase during the past few years, this trend being especially noticeable in New Zealand and Australia where both butter and cheese production has shown a marked expansion.

Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia are the provinces in which commercial production of tomatoes for canning purposes and fresh sale are of greatest importance, the total acreage being approximately 20,000 acres. The Agricultural Situation bulletin.

Experiments in Ireland showed that there was no appreciable difference in the keeping quality of eggs from hens confined in pens or on free range, the main factor governing the keeping quality being the season of the year. Eggs packed with the air cell up remained in good condition longer than those packed with the air cell down.

While the market for Canadian farm products in the United States is a very limited one under present tariff arrangements, nevertheless, says "The Agricultural Situation" bulletin issued by the Dominion department of agriculture, economic conditions in that country cannot fail to have repercussions upon Canada, whether direct or indirect.

The Wheat Agreement provides for an export quota of 200 million bushels for Canada during 1933-34. When the full amount of this quota is exported, Canada will have a carry-over on July 31, next, of about 164 million bushels, the equivalent of probable domestic consumption during 1934-5, and a normal carry-over on July 31, 1935. This means that every bushel of wheat produced in Canada in 1934 will be available for the world market. The Agricultural Situation bulletin.

Women Study Prospecting

Class Conducted At University Of Manitoba Is Growing

Ever widening their field of interest and activity, women of Winnipeg have entered the prospecting field. Seven women prospectors in embryo attended the first short course for women conducted by G. M. Brownell of the geology department, University of Manitoba, and still more registered for the second session.

The first seven finished the initial lessons and received certificates from the department of mines. At present, their knowledge is academic, but there has been actual talk of an expedition in the spring for practical work.

One woman prospecter is actually doing location work in Manitoba. She is Miss Kathleen Rice, honor graduate of Toronto University, who is located at Herb Lake. Miss Rice is a prospector in the west sense of the word, driving a team of huskies, wearing hob-nailed boots and well equipped to care for herself in the wilderness.

That mythical beast, the Chinese dragon, is described in old books as having a cannon's head, a lion's paws, a snake's neck, a chameleon's body, fish's scales, eagle's claws and the ears of a cow.

Patient Hears Music And Forgets About Being Afraid

A dental chair which its inventor believes the patient will climb into without dread was demonstrated in connection with the Chicago Dental Society's annual convention.

Dr. Elmer S. Best of Minneapolis said its development was due to experiments which revealed to him that music had powers also to charm away that mental shrinking with which most people regard their session in dentist's chairs.

Applying his idea, he has worked out a plan whereby a wire connection brings music from a radio set through the dental chair's head piece to amplifiers which press against the patient's mastoid bones. The patient absorbs the music through the bones and the contrivance can be tuned so low that the music is inaudible in the ear.

"And old children become so completely interested in the music that irreparably they have forgotten their teeth were being worked upon."

"I have heard of only one man who was not soothed by being lionized," remarked a wit.

"And who was he?" asked the "goat."

"The Prophet Daniel, sir," was the response.

Little Journeys In Science

SNOW

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Snow, so common in Canada, is seldom found south of 36 deg. north latitude, except in regions modified by high altitudes. Snow consists of particles of frozen moisture which result, when the air is cooled below the freezing temperature. A cluster of such crystals is called a snowflake. Hail and sleet are raindrops which have been frozen in their journey through the air, but snowflakes are produced when the vapor in the air crystallizes. A snowflake becomes larger in falling through the air because it condenses additional moisture in its descent. They are larger in mild weather than when it is very cold.

Snowflakes assume a great variety of beautiful forms, over a thousand different kinds have been observed. They are seen to the best advantage under the microscope when they are collected on a black surface. The finest forms are found in the polar regions. The star-like form is the most common. Some come as hexagonal plates and others as hexagonal prisms. The star-like form is the most common. Some come as hexagonal plates and others as hexagonal prisms. The star-like form is the most common. Some come as hexagonal plates and others as hexagonal prisms.

Snow is a non-conductor and thus it forms a protective covering for the earth, keeping the temperature of the ground from dropping to an extent that would destroy seeds and plants. The snow mounds on the mountains furnishes water for irrigating arid lands, and supplies the rivers with water in the summer. Glaciers are simply huge masses of ice and snow. The first mention of "ice snow" was made by the great writer Aristotle, who discovered deposits of it on high mountain tops. In the Arctic regions it is most abundant and due to very small vegetable organisms.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING

3 teaspoons grated orange rind
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon orange juice
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg yolk, unbeaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar

Add orange and lemon rind to fruit juice and let stand 10 minutes; strain liquid. Cream butter; add egg yolk and salt and mix well. Add part of sugar gradually, blending after each addition. Add remaining sugar, alternately with fruit juice, until of right consistency to spread. Beat after each addition until smooth. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers or top and sides of 8-inch cake (generously), or about 3 dozen cup cakes.

FRENCH COCOA BALLS

5/8 cup cocoa
1/2 cup confectioners' (very fine ground) sugar
1 cup nut meats
1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 tablespoon vanilla

Mix 1/2 cup cocoa and 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar. Chop nut meats and add. Moisten with sweetened condensed milk and vanilla. Shape into balls. Combine the remaining sugar and cocoa and roll the balls in it. This recipe makes three dozen.

Weight Of Million In Gold

The weight of a million dollars in gold would depend upon the fineness of the gold. If it were in the form of gold coin or new gold. A million dollars in United States gold coins would weigh 55.50 ounces but there are 25.8 grains of nine-tenths fine gold to the dollar. At the present R.F.C. gold price it takes about 28,000 ounces of newly mined gold to be worth a million dollars.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE RISEN CHRIST

Golden Text: "If then ye were raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated on the right hand of God." Colossians 3:1.

Lesson: John 20:1-18.
Devotional Reading: Ephesians 1:15-23.

Explanations And Comments

Mary Magdalene at the Tomb of Christ, verses 1, 2. On Sunday, the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene came early, while it was still dark, to the tomb where the body of Jesus had been laid on Friday. She is called Magdalene from the village of Magdala, north of Tiberias, which was her home: see Mark 16:9. There were others with her, as the "we" in the next verse indicates, and they had come to embalm the body of Jesus (Mt. 28:1; Mk. 16:1; Lk. 24:1).

A stone had been placed over the entrance of the tomb (Mt. 15:46) and sealed (Mt. 27:66). They found the stone rolled away from the tomb. Jesus Reveals Himself to Mary Magdalene, verses 14-16. "John's insight taught him first to conclude that his Lord had risen: Mary Magdalene taught her Lord first to satisfy it," for as she turned she beheld Jesus standing. But she did not recognize him. The Synoptists (Mt. 28:1; Mk. 16:12; Lk. 24:16, 37) and John in 21:4 speak of his form as altered: Mary's eyes, moreover, were dim with tears. "Woman, why weepest thou, whom seekest thou?" Jesus questioned.

"They were the first words of the Risen Lord. It is so easy to imagine that the first utterance of the Conqueror of death would have been different—some command or rebuke to his apostles, some great declaration of victory. But it is an inquiry concerning a woman's sorrow, and a woman's quest. It is as if our Lord was declaring that, his own pain and grief forever past, he still cared more for the griefs and struggles of mankind than anything else." (R. C. Gillette)

"Mary," said Jesus, "Rabboni!" Master, she cried. Rabboni was the Galilean term for Rabbi. There is much just in a name when pronounced by a person capable of feeling deeply. There may be more expressed in a name than can be expressed in volumes, just as there may be more in a moment than can be expressed in a lifetime. So it was when Jesus called Mary by name, and she called him Master" (Edward Everett Hale, Jr.).

"But go," said Jesus, as Mary would have grasped his feet in adoration. "The words were spoken to teach Mary that there was a far higher way of touching Christ than with the hand of flesh; the truer way to lay hold of Christ was by the grasp of faith" (Augustine). "For I am not yet ascended unto the Father," he added. The old, familiar fellowship was not to be renewed, only after his ascension a new and spiritual communion would be established between him and his followers. "But go"—you have gazed long enough at the empty tomb—"Go and make known the wonderful fact that His Occupant has risen."

Proves The Workmanship

Three Men Can Lift Perfectly Balanced Bridge Span

There is another example of the excellence of British bridge building in Middlesbrough, in the north of England. This is a link in the new road between Conkshire and Durham. It crosses the river Tees and has to allow large ships to pass up to Stockton. So the bridge span has to be 120 feet above the water level when fully raised. It is the lifting of this span that proves the workmanship, for it weighs 2,600 tons. At a test made last year, the balance proved so perfect that three men working by hand-power on ordinary hand-pulleys lifted this centre span to the top of the towers easily. Of course, the process of raising the span is to be achieved by electrical machinery, the manual labor is only an emergency measure, as a motor engine also can lift the 2,600 tons of steel.

Economic Survey Of Land

Saskatchewan To Take Inventory Of All Land Resources

Plans for the conduct of a land economic survey to accumulate facts upon which to base future agricultural development of Saskatchewan was announced by Hon. J. F. Bryant, K.C., minister of public works.

"We propose taking an inventory," he said, "of all land resources as a basis of land use, in order to indicate the crop areas and their limits, and to classify soils on the basis of the agricultural value."

Occupied farm lands which are used for purposes for which they are not physically or economically adapted, and are no longer capable of yielding a reasonable return, he said, must be classified and used for the purpose for which they are best adapted, according to a carefully planned programme of land utilization.

Gardening

Planting Shrubby Just As Early In The Spring As Possible Is Advisable

With a few exceptions, and these are mentioned in any good catalogue, shrubbery, trees and ornamental vines are planted in the spring just as soon as possible. The earlier their roots are covered with soil the better even if this means simply planting them temporarily in a shallow trench. Especially when near a house where the earth is largely barren stuff thrown out of the cellar excavation, some good soil and a little fertilizer should be added and it is also important to water thoroughly for a week or two. With the larger shrubs and trees prune severely before planting. The soil must be worked thoroughly about the roots, and trees should be tied to a stout stake to prevent the wind working them loose.

A good garden will save money, improve the health of the family and provide more real pleasure than any other acre on the farm. For those who are planning to devote considerable authorities advise selecting a piece of warm, rather light soil, handy to the buildings and laying it out in 100 foot rows for horse cultivation. This is about the right length for many kinds of vegetables for the average family, but much more than is required for lettuce, radish or parsley. On the other hand those things which are to be grown for winter storage, like carrots, beets, potatoes, white beans, cabbage and onions, will require several rows.

Even the most unpromising dwelling, if clothed in trees and shrubbery, fulfills the real requirements of a home. There are, too, practical advantages of such planting, especially in more open places, where trees are used to break the force of storms, prevent erosion, and provide some protection against sweltering heat in summer. Again flowers, shrubbery and trees, grouped about the building, add such value to the property when the time comes to dispose of it. Rules for arranging planting are simple. The main object is to tie the dwelling to the ground, to make it appear as a natural development. Well around the outside, with possibly more emphasis at the rear, will be the larger and taller trees. These may be native sorts, like the Elm, Maple or Pine or some of the beautiful imported species such as Schneider Maple, with its bronze-purple foliage, the Japanese Walnut, the Kentucky Coffee Tree or the striking Lombardy Poplar.

Against stone, stucco, gleaming white frame, some of the smaller evergreens like Colorado Spruce, White Cedar and the pyramidal Arborvitae are very effective. While the trees are used to break the general straight lines of the building, detail in this respect is worked out with shrubs. Groups of two or three of the same specimens are planted within a dozen feet of the house with the taller sorts at the corners.

Shrubs range in height from 15 inches in the case of some of the Spiraea to Honey-suckle and Lilac which reach up 12 feet or more. They are used to screen basement windows, and break the straight lines about steps, corners, and walks. They gradually lift up the vision from the wide expanse of level lawn to the higher trees in the background. Just as the shrubs are used to lead up to the trees, perennial flowers and spring bulbs are grouped in and around the clumps of shrubbery.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad, and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip out to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, and for her and tell her she has a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. To Camilla's surprise she learns that the account is that of her foster father's company, which has decided on an extensive campaign to bolster up lagging business. The critics were enthusiastic about her work, and Mr. Weeks offered her a salary of $50.00 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She goes to keep a direct engagement with Peter, who is under the impression that she is securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave the Hoyt household. Avis Werth rents a studio on the same floor as Peter, and invites him to have lunch there. He accepts reluctantly, but is favorably impressed with his visit.

CHAPTER XXXV

In the meantime, Camilla was absorbed with her new work. She lived with, by and for him. She sketched and planned at the office all day, was on the alert for new ideas and characteristics in her public contacts. task, went to sleep with them in her thoughts.

Of course, she thought about Peter, too; the thoughts squeezed in deliciously with the crowding, perspiring ones that demanded their share of her attention, much as Peter's thoughts of Camilla treasured into his working hours.

She saw him occasionally, too, but not as often as formerly. It would not always be like that, they told themselves and each other, with blithe words and wistful heart. Just now, the paramount issue for each of them was to make a temporary success which would develop a greater future.

Camilla believed that if she made good in the first months of the Wheatheart Cereal campaign, the future would smooth itself out into days less arduous and anxious, and she might devote much more of herself and her time to Peter. The first terms of their marriage plans had been that nothing should interfere with their individual ambitions. Those terms were unequivocal and each adhered bravely to them, even though the effort cost them incalculable hours of loneliness and longing.

But, as every plan has its latent advantages, it has its weaknesses, also. It never occurred to either of them that the very stimulus of human companionship and relaxation of leisure hours which they were denying themselves in the satisfaction of each other, they were absorbing from others less gratifying.

While Camilla thought that she was contributing more inspiration to Peter's work by leaving him alone, she believed that because he could not take care of her, he had no right to expect her to share his meager, anxious existence, had they only been as wise as she believed they were, she would have realized that nothing could have contributed so richly to his inspiration as her self, and he would have known that, loving him as she did, every meager, anxious hour of his life that she did not share was a precious jewel lost somewhere along the way to regret.

The first cloud of discord between them appeared on the horizon when she had been working at the office for a month and was gaining confidence in herself rapidly. She had arrived at the studio one Sunday afternoon earlier than Peter had expected her, and found him working on a large color advertisement for a transportation company. Her remarks were due not so much to the fact that he was doing the work, but to her surprise that he had said nothing to her about it and seemed reluctant even to tell her about it.

He had kissed her rather perfunctorily in greeting and hastened to dispose of his work. Usually, he proceeded with whatever he was doing when she interrupted him.

"Did I disturb you by coming in early?" She was contrite. "I'm sorry. It was such a glorious afternoon and I wasn't wanting anything to do at the apartment—oh, I am getting to be a very efficient housekeeper—and I just couldn't wait longer to see you," she confessed finally.

"That's more like it," Peter laughed, clapping her to him suddenly and looking down into her deep eyes, tenderly. "Of course, you coming earlier doesn't disturb my work. It does me, though. You are more lovely every time I see you, and that isn't often enough, precious. I was only trying to keep busy so the time would flow more quickly until you came. How's everything?"

"Wonderful, Peter. I'm sure my work is going over big. I just had a hunch it is, because I'm so happy over it, I guess. I am happier every day." Her face glowed with a reflection of her felicity.

As if a chill had suddenly cooled his ardor, Peter's eyes grew somber and a mask of gravity dropped down over his face. His words seemed to Camilla to come suddenly from far away. "The less you see of me, the happier you are." He laughed a little, but it was a merciless attempt to conceal the bitterness of the jealous male who is helpless to defend himself. Such jest was always both unseasoning and unsavable.

Peter drew away and began to gather up his working materials from the table with swift movements. Camilla wondered frantically if she only imagined the sudden change in his manner. She made a desperate effort to sound casual when she asked, taking off her hat and jacket, "Want's this you are doing now?"

"Oh, nothing much," evasively. "Something new, isn't it?" She approached the table and saw that the huge card was a soft-tone photograph of a bus terminal which Peter had been tinting with water colors. Camilla looked up at him inquiringly. He flushed slightly and did not meet her eyes. "Oh, you will say it's

WIFE'S DELIGHT AT HUSBAND'S LOSS

30 Pounds of Fat!

Here is something all wives of fat men will be glad to know. It is the experience of a woman whose husband recently weighed 230 lbs. She writes:

"I really feel I must write and tell you that, after taking Kruschen Salt for nearly 3 months, my husband has lost his weight down from 230 lbs. to 200 lbs. This has been achieved by nothing else but Kruschen. I lost weight also, and I started taking Kruschen only three weeks ago. Already I have got down from 155 lbs to 144 lbs. We are delighted."

(Mrs. C.) Kruschen combats the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to perform their functions properly—to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which are allowed to accumulate, will be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue.

kindergarten stuff compared with your advertising copy. I wasn't going to show it to you. I'm not doing it for the cash, so I can hold out with my work for the rest of the month."

"Why, of course—why shouldn't you do it, if you can spare the time? It looks fine—what for it is."

"For what it is," he agreed tonelessly.

"Why, Peter, what's the matter with you?"

"Oh, impatiently. It tears me to pieces to have to grub like that for a little money. It isn't that I mind the extra work. I'd rather dig sweat for that matter. Only I have to save my dignity—if any—by staying in the art line—if by any contention of the imagination anyone could call that art." She knew that his bitter impatience was a culmination of overwork and anxiety. But the effort which she made to soothe his resentment was like touching a match to a fuse.

"Oh, Peter, it's a rotten shame that you have to humiliate your own pride and sacrifice your precious time for the sake of a few paltry dollars, while some people have so much money they can't find any other ways to use a fraction of it."

"No use to talk about that. The world's been like that ever since it was started long enough for some to get ahead in the race. Those in the rear are either poor runners or victims of circumstances one way or another. They're carrying too much lead or got a bad break. Some will catch up in time, some of the leaders get behind; but they can't all come in first, or even second or third."

"I know, but even a thoroughbred needs a fair chance. The more of the time, the race is 'fixed'."

"Sometimes I feel that way, too, but I'm going to keep up the pace until I reach the tape and find out."

"Of course you will—and you may be the one to break it!" She smiled encouragement and stroked his cheek fondly. He had dropped into a chair and pulled her down beside him as they often sat while they talked.

"But there is so much lack of balance and futile waste of real talent," she continued. "I was just thinking of the time Mother Hoyt was at her wife's end to know what to give him for his birthday. Not that she particularly desired to give him anything, but it was one of her pet customs to remember anniversaries with impressive and appropriate gifts. He had everything and more than he needed. But she finally hit upon the idea of a gold keychain."

"I went with her to the jeweler's when she bought it, and remember that I thought it was silly to pay so much for a thing that looked no better than the average metal keychain, though I was quite young then. It cost a hundred dollars, but that was only the beginning of the idea. She had his keys copied in solid gold to go with it and each of them engraved with his monogram. I believe the whole thing cost the trifling sum of five or six hundred dollars."

"Did he like it?"

"He had to seem appreciative. But I'll bet he never used his keys again without thinking how many boxes of Wheatheart Cereal profit they represented."

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

"Well, you have to consider that from another viewpoint, too," he conceded. "I'll bet that jeweler and the locksmith who made the keys, and the metallurgist and all the workmen involved, on down the line were thankful for her extravagant whim. Maybe there was even a poor, struggling sculptor somewhere along the line who profited a little by the transaction, indirectly. That's what I'm for, to keep the ball rolling along so everyone can have a grab at it. That's what most of the trouble is now. Too many people have stopped playing the game and are waiting for the other fellow to begin while they watch from the sidelines."

"I'm glad you gave me the idea that the gold keychain might have done someone good, after all. I never thought of it that way."

"Sure—like the fellow down the street here who runs the little flower shop. He was telling me yesterday that he used to count big on orders for the patients in the hospital across the park, but lots of those orders are killed now because someone got the idea that flowers were an extravagant luxury in the depression. They think they are being noble to refuse to accept flowers and have the money added to charity funds. Clubs, societies and individuals are taking it up. And where does that get 'em? More charity for the shiftless and less work for people who want to make an honest living! Funny how minds flip-flop the leader blindly, like sheep. It's matter what kind of a silly idea jumps over the fence, a whole flock follows."

"But don't you think that's rather sweet to know that the money which might have bought flowers for you that you don't need, is feeding some poor child?"

"No, I don't. Look here, what good does that do if the kid's father had been driving a truck for a forist and lost his job because everybody quit buying flowers? Not only the driver is involved, either. There's the florist and his employees, the growers and their gardeners, the seedsmen, the flower box manufacturers—it's endless. Suppose I worked in a flower shop or a greenhouse to get by while I'm studying. I've done almost everything. It's all the same principle."

Camilla mused. "Why, that's right. I never thought of it that way before. No wonder the world gets mixed up every so often. It's an awful tangle, isn't it?"

"It's a million tangles all snarled up."

So far, the discussion had been unimportant enough, but it was Camilla's next remark that caused the spark.

Life Restored To Dead Dogs

Experiments Made At The University Of California Institute

Two dogs pronounced dead were "brought back to life" for four and five hours, respectively, in experiments at the University of California Institute of experimental biology.

One of the animals was first pronounced dead, from nitrogen gas administered by the scientists, at 12:34 p.m. Dr. John E. Cornish injected a solution containing oxygen, adrenalin and heparin and feasted the dog on a board to restore circulation.

At 12:43 the scientists noted the heart began beating. At 1 p.m. reflexes returned. At 1:06 the dog moved an eye. At 4 p.m. its pulse and respiration approached normal. At 6 p.m. it died.

Another dog lasted only four hours after it had been resuscitated.

Great Service

There are 1,426 official listed broadcasting stations in the world, the U.S. leading with 600 and Russia second with 73. Whenever we want a special program we can get the whole 1,426 at once, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal.

It is estimated that automobile accidents took 29,000 lives in the United States in 1933.

"I WOULDN'T RISK FAILURES WITH INFERIOR BAKING POWDER. LESS THAN 1/4 WORTH OF MAGIC MAKES A CAKE, AND MAGIC ALWAYS GIVES FINE RESULTS."

says MRS. JEANNE MCKENZIE, whose cakes have won First Prize at two Canadian National Expositions, Toronto

MAGIC BAKING POWDER costs so little—and it gives consistently better baking results. Actually less than 1/4 worth of this fine-quality baking powder makes a good big cake. It doesn't pay to take chances with inferior baking powder. Bake with Magic and be sure!

Chance To Be Pioneers
Trip To Northern Mining Fields Is Good Test

Those who bemoan the decline and fall of the good old pioneering spirit might try getting into some of the mineral fields in northern Canada. The schedules of the Canadian National Railways give a varied choice of routes from rail-head on. Sometimes it is by plane, but mostly the adventures have to depend on dog team. That's the way into Gods Lake or the Herb Lake fields of the Hudson Bay Railway in northern Manitoba. In northwestern Ontario, in the Red Lake district, the trip from the railway into the mining area is made on sleighs hauled by caterpillar tractors. The distance is 145 miles. After that trip anybody ought to know just what kind of a pioneer he is—Canadian National Railways Magazine.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

VALUES

What is the worth of a little song? No one knows the answer. For sometimes it echoes may linger long. And sometimes they die in a day.

What is the worth of a smile, a kiss? Only a seer could guess; Though often they bring but a moment's bliss.

Who can a life they may bless. Yet all of a value they may bless. Who can a life they may bless. Yet all of a value they may bless.

Some must go to the world's far ends Seeking life's ardent fire; Others find where their road first bends.

All of their heart's desire!

A Gypsy Burial

Early Victorian funeral trappings, including a plumed hearse drawn by six purple draped black horses, were used at the recent funeral of Levi Boswell, son of the late gypsy queen of Kent.

Prince Weds Commoner

Grandson Of Swedish King Gives Up Royal Rights

A romance like a fairy tale of fiction came true with the wedding of Sigvard, Prince of Sweden, Duke of Uppland and grandson of the Swedish king, to the beautiful Fraulien Erika Patzok, 22-year-old daughter of a Berlin industrialist.

The 26-year-old prince—like Lennart, his cousin—abandoned his princely rights for a romantic union with the German actress.

They were married in the large council chamber of Caxton hall, instead of in the small registry office, despite the fact a municipal election was being held in the building.

Italy has commenced to modernize her heavy battle fleet. There has been no recent announcement of any nation seeking to bring the dove of peace up to date.

HERE'S THAT QUICK WAY TO STOP A COLD

1 2 3

Take 2 Aspirin Tablets. Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle according to directions in box.

Almost Instant Relief in This Way

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get Aspirin Tablets. Aspirin is the trademark of The Bayer Company, Limited, and the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on each tablet. They dissolve almost

Local News

Miss Dilya Brown will leave Sunday for Calgary where she will take up her duties as a nurse in training in Calgary general hospital.

Frank G. Graham, proprietor of the Cabinet Cigar Store, has been off work owing to an injury sustained a couple of weeks ago by falling in the bathtub. His ribs appear to have been fractured.

A well-written poem was noticed in last week's Blaimore Enterprise, written by a bard of Hillcrest, eulogizing the editor and the paper. 'Bart' must feel quite cheery after receiving such a compliment.

Alberta hockey circles were again honored last week when it became officially known that Clarence Campbell, noted Edmonton referee, had been appointed to take charge of the Allan Cup finals in Toronto.

To a congregation which packed the church to the doors, Rev. Roy Taylor preached a special sermon on the curling and hockey clubs Sunday night, March 27. The church was suitably decorated to give a proper setting to the service held in honor of the sportsmen of the town. Miss
Lena Fraser rendered a solo and Mr.
Harris a violin selection. Taking as his subject "The Game of Life," Mr.
Taylor preached on the text "Strive to enter in by the narrow door," and using the familiar phraseology of the curler he called on all "to hit the broom." He stressed the desirability of having a high and noble goal in life and the bending of all our efforts to reach that ideal to play the game of life in a way that in spite of temporary defeat means ultimate triumph.
The sermon was replete with lessons which made a decided appeal to those who engage in sport.

IS THIS RECIPROCITY?

Local activities require publicity to interest the public. The Journal recently gave almost three columns of free publicity to a local organization in connection with its activities. Admittedly without publicity events such as these would be "flops." In return
The Journal expects if there is any aid advertising to be placed, which helps to pay for the publicity, so liberally given, that this be remembered.
